

Sources Outside the GCC Library

Directory of Open Access Journals – <https://doaj.org/>

This website contains listings and links to all the freely available research journals and publications on the internet. Here you can find free current sociological research articles and journals.

American Sociological Society – <http://www.asanet.org/>

The American Sociological Society is a primary sociological society for United States sociologists and thinkers. They offer a variety of educational and networking opportunities.

Sociological Science – <https://www.sociologicalscience.com/>

Sociological Science is a free research publication for those looking to read or publish papers in the field.

Societies – <http://www.mdpi.com/journal/societies>

Societies is another free research publication for those looking to read or publish papers in the field.

Sociology (NYU Lecture Series) –

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4FduU3EokBY&list=PL9F1D919FC1D446D6>

If you are interested in listening to a sociological lecture series you can find this one from New York University. This is one of many examples of open course ware, or free online non-credit classes.

Open Culture – <http://www.openculture.com/freeonlinecourses>

There are a large number of free online non-credit classes. Through this link, you can see a listing of many of the classes that are available. If one scrolls down, they will even find a number of courses in Sociology.

Wikipedia (Sociology) – <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sociology>

While one should always double-check Wikipedia articles for accuracy through the references at the bottom of the page, Wikipedia often contains a wealth of background information on a variety of sociological topics and schools of thought.

---

Community Borrower Card (GCC Library) –

<http://lib.gccaz.edu/lmc/circulation/comborrowpol.html>

At the GCC Library, our librarians encourage students to never stop learning. While in school, our students have access to all the resources of the library, including both our physical materials and online resources. After graduation or when a student leaves GCC, they can continue to borrow books and materials through the GCC Community Borrower card. More information about this opportunity can be seen through the above link.